In 1754 an English furniture maker named Thomas Chippendale published a compilation of his work named "Gentleman and the Cabinet-Maker's Director". So influential was his book that it inspired a generation of cabinetmakers to emulate his work. The tradition continues today with our own master craftsmen recreating these 18th century classics by hand from solid plantation grown mahogany. Special attention is paid to the distinctive characteristics of the Chippendale Period, the gently tapering legs, the intricate fretwork, the finely carved acanthus leaves and the elegant ball & claw feet, which are all reproduced in detail for the discerning buyer.
